

Recycled Racing

by i Entertainment

Not every team building experience needs to be a high impact, grueling experience. We don't always need you to hit your target heart rate. Team building can be a low impact experience where important things like communication, problem solving, and the creative process can be explored without sweat. Sometimes, you just don't want to sweat. Our low impact programs do a very good job and keeping sweat out of the conversation with skills exploration being in the conversation. And that conversation can be customizable, so be sure to ask an i Entertainment Event Specialist how we can build our programs to fit your group's needs.

Teams are judged not only on the success of their car while racing against other cars. Teams are also judged on the creativity and design of their cars and the creation of their winners circle.

It's a high octane experience without physical effort. Let the cars do the heavy lifting, the guests will have fun without the sweat. It's one of the most unique team building experiences you'll ever have and your guests will leave thanking you for a memorable experience. Then you can thank us for making it so simple and turn key.

Drivers to your cars! Pit crews at the ready! The hopes and dreams that fuel this high powered machine are now on the line. You have a need for speed. Speed that can only be provided through gravity! Let us explain. You and your team design a high performance race car. Calibrating the wheel alignment, checking the chassis, and making the appropriate calibrations to win your race is job number one after you build the car. But only amateurs rely on metal and rubber to build their machines. You are a professional. You can make a high performance vehicle out of anything. So to prove that, we're providing milk cartons, plastic water bottles, and other recyclable materials to build pinewood derby-esque cars down our multi-lane track.
